

DION MAZEROLLE

BARITONE

BIOGRAPHY

As Alberich in Das Rheingold with Edmonton Opera –

“... [Dion] Mazerolle’s Alberich was the most compelling figure in this tale of ambition versus love. He sang his role as one might imagine a working-poor Trump supporter, if he sang opera, would sing it as he agonized over his woeful, unjustly thwarted life. It was compellingly forceful and intimidatingly compelling, and by the time he was cursing the gods who robbed him of his glorious future with the ring, this Alberich was perversely in charge, both operatically and narratively. Mazerolle sang his hope and fury splendidly.”

Bill Rankin, Opera Canada

In Golaud in Pelléas et Mélisande with Fondazione i Teatri di Piacenza –

“Dion Mazerolle was an excellent Golaud; paying careful attention to the text, he was theatrically convincing and entered into Debussy’s sonic mindset with sensitive attention to orchestral colours.”

Gian Francesco Amoroso, LeSalonMusical.it
